

URGENT INTERACTIONS

“Listen to your gut. If something feels ‘off,’ don’t disregard it. Pursue it.”

— Lindsey E. Fish, MD, FCUCM
JUCM Editor in Chief

“HEART score was a game changer because it gave us permission to do the right thing and send home patients who are low-risk.”

— Michael Weinstock, MD
JUCM Senior Clinical Editor

“For this case, infections that are being treated correctly but are still getting worse can be something we see in the urgent care. Especially for children, I wanted to shed light that when this happens, it can be an opportunity to unmask a severe, developing, underlying condition, such as cancer.”

— Aaron J. Maki, MD, PhD, Author of “Worsening Otitis Media Despite Correct Treatment: A Case Report of Pediatric Leukemia” (page 27)

A WORD OF THANKS

The Journal of Urgent Care Medicine would like to thank the dedicated group of urgent care professionals listed below who graciously contributed their time and insight to review recent articles for publication. The peer reviewer status is worthy of inclusion on your curriculum vitae, so if you’re interested in becoming a peer reviewer, reach out to the JUCM team at: editor@jucm.com.

- Terry Chang
- Sal D’Allura
- Dominic K. Hardatt
- Glenn Harnett
- Stacy Hausmann
- Michael Heard
- Hal Kramer
- Sean McNeeley
- Kevin Rahner
- John Reilly
- Ernesto Sanz Martinez
- Sadhana Sharma
- Dillon Stanfield

Have a comment? Interested in sharing your perspective on a topic that appeared in JUCM? Not all letters will be published. Letters may be edited for length and clarity.
Send your letters to: editor@jucm.com